

Bubune Ofori is a 23 year old university graduate. He travelled to and became an exchange student in Canada, and is now looking to establish himself in his home country. He is highly self-motivated, and enjoys learning and networking with others. He developed many friends and connections that also share his passion for technology and cryptocurrency. Bubune owns 37 RTX 3080s that he uses to mine Ethereum. Bubune already has the skills to become an app developer, with familiarity in tools such as React, Angular, MERN stack, and Java. He also has a double major in Commerce and Computer Science, and is looking to combine his two passions into his life work. Eager to start his own company, he is planning to create a financial platform tailored to Ghana. He is currently in the process of looking for investors that can feed into his grand vision of building the largest financial platform in Africa. He is looking to further his knowledge on how to grow his startup, as well as connecting with other entrepreneurs, companies, and investors that share the same vision as him.

Quaashie Abubakari is a 60 year old woman from Africa who represents the company Mart of Walls whose headquarters are based in North America. Feeling nostalgic about her home country of Ghana, she decided to open a branch office there. She has been working with Mart of Walls since its inception, having worked her way up through the ranks by putting in more effort than anyone else. Having had various different roles in almost every part of the company, she is considered tech-savvy and one of the company's best experts at finding solutions. She is looking to hire young individuals in Africa who are just as hardworking and willing to succeed as she was when she was first starting off, who will be important in establishing an African branch. She is looking to take a group of like-minded individuals under her wing and grow them into successful employees of the African branch of Mart of Walls.

Musk Elon is a 49 year old wealthy investor looking to invest in aspiring entrepreneurs emerging from his home country of South Africa. Thanks to years of being a ruthless businessman, he has a net worth of $200 billion USD. He has personally started several highly successful companies as an entrepreneur, including companies like xSpace, each worth several billion dollars. He is also very tech savvy thanks to his years as an entrepreneur in tech related companies and his educational background in engineering. He has a keen eye for investing in unlikely avenues such as cryptocurrency, which has earned him further billions. He currently lives in California, and performs much of his investing communications through online means. His main goal is to find a space where he can find and speak with talented individuals with innovative ideas. However, he also wants to eliminate subpar candidates and allow them to grow by providing workshops and training. This all lets him further his goals of finding the next big project to invest in and make more money.