For this sprint, we identified our critical path as shown in the diagram as e-learning content. The critical path was a three-way tie due to a majority of tasks already being completed. Thus we prioritized being able to view e-learning content, followed by viewing company profiles with specialized statistics. Other tasks not part of the critical path were then taken upon by remaining group members. There were also a few tasks that were leftover from Sprint 3, being messaging between users and viewing company profiles. This further encouraged us to finish displaying company statistics.
